Advanced Standing - University Courses while in High School

Academically eligible NBOSP students can take STU courses during grade 12 for the price of domestic tuition—a savings of over 50%. Courses start in January, May, and September.

May 2022 Classes for NBOSP Students

Introductory to Human Rights (May 30 to June 23)

This course will introduce students to the study of human rights by investigating the question What is a human right? The course will proceed primarily through a number of examples and case studies. Students will also be given an overview of the basic instruments, institutions, and ideas relevant to human rights.

Introduction to Global Politics (May 30 to June 23)

This course provides an introduction to the concepts of nation and state, sovereignty, forms of government, and political conflict. It does so through consideration of issues in world politics, such as human rights and social justice, ecological imbalance, economic inequalities, war, global governmental institutions and organizations.

To apply for these courses, email admissions@stu.ca

New Brunswick Medicare

The Province of New Brunswick now provides Medicare coverage to international students free of charge.

Pathways to Immigration

Many international students who have graduated from St. Thomas University have taken advantage of the pathway to immigration available post-graduation and are now living and working in Canada.
